Picket new
VW site

Local tradesmen have set up an informational picket line at a building site west of Dixon in the midst of a dispute between local unions and C. Baumann Volkswagen. The firm awarded a bid for construction of a new facility to Faulkner Construction Co., Forrester, a non-union firm. According to Chuck Baumann, the Faulkner bid, one of six received, was $15,000 less than the others. Baumann reasoned that if the bid was awarded to any of the others his only alternative would be to raise prices. "I'm trying to keep as much work as possible on a local level," Baumann said, referring to subcontractors, "but they may not want to cross the line." The 10,000-square-foot building is scheduled for completion Sept. 1. (Telegraph Photo)

Fort Ticonderoga
capture is re-enacted

TICONDEROGA, N.Y. (AP) — Benedict Arnold complained his feet hurt and Ethan Allen grew weary of rowing across Lake Champlain with 14-foot oars. But with history and television cameras waiting, they and other patriots captured Ft. Ticonderoga in a predawn raid today.

A crowd estimated by fort officials at 6,000 huddled in the morning chill to watch as more than 80 descendants of Allen, Arnold and the Green Mountain Boys re-enacted America's first victory of the Revolution that began three weeks earlier at Concord and Lexington.

The long-planned bicentennial event was scheduled to start at 4 a.m., precisely 200 years to the hour that the patriots rowed across the lake from Vermont in two boats, marched through a hole in the ill-defended fort and captured its 40-odd British defenders and precious cannon without firing a shot.

But there was a delay of 20 minutes when Ronald Arnold, 31, of Kingston, Ont., who portrayed his ancestor Benedict, got caught in a traffic jam of buses taking spectators to the pageant.

About 200 reporters, photographers and TV cameramen covered the event, leading to some grumbling among spectators denied a seat inside the reconstructed stone fort. "Everyone in the news media including Izvestia is here," muttered one man. Izvestia is the Soviet government newspaper.

John J. Auman, general manager of the fort, predicted at least 20,000 visitors would attend the repeat performances at 10:30 a.m. and 2:30 a.m., partly because of the sunny weather and also because "We've had our Watergate, our Vietnam. They're behind us. And I think the American people are just ready to celebrate."

Dr. John K. Lattimer, 59, a Columbia University urologist and descendant of Allen, had the role of portraying Allen and demanding the surrender of the fort "in the name of the Great Jehovah and the Continental Congress."

Ronald Arnold, 31, a teacher and salesman from Kingston, Ont., had the role of his ancestor Benedict, who tried in vain to assume command of the rag-tag revolutionaries but had to settle for walking alongside Allen.

Arnold, who drove here with his infant son — John Benedict Arnold, shrugs when asked how it feels to be descended from a man whose name has become synonymous with traitor.

"So big deal," he said. "It has its advantages, in that someone did a genealogy of the family free of charge."

Actually, at the time of the Ticonderoga raid, Arnold was still a hero to American patriots, and Ronald hasn't forgotten. It was only later that his ancestor tried to betray West Point to the British.

Dixon's Mother of Year named

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress is nearing final passage of its first comprehensive alternative to the $355.6 billion federal budget submitted by President Ford and it's calling for a deficit $8.8 billion higher than Ford wants.

The program calls for $367 billion in spending with a $68.8 billion deficit. The spending limits were worked out in Senate-House conference committee and both houses appear likely to adopt the guidelines next week.

The congressional resolution calls for $11.4 billion more in spending than President Ford's budget and $8.8 billion higher deficit.

However, if the administration were to follow the assumptions used by authors of the congressional plan, the Ford budget and deficit would be several billion dollars higher, close to the congressional figures.

This may have influenced Secretary of the Treasury William E. Simon, who indicated Friday the administration may be willing to accept the congressional plan.

Simon said the administration still would like the deficit held to $60 billion, but added that a dangerous red ink figure would be one in the $80 billion to $100 billion range.

The conferees reached their compromise on the budget resolution after some sharp and heated debate.

House conferees contended the Senate figures were much too low to turn the economy around and make a substantial cut in unemployment.

Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, head of the Senate delegation, said he personally had sympathy with this point of view. But he emphasized that the Senate had voted in the floor debate not to add more economic stimulus.

Muskie said it would take a $100 billion deficit to move unemployment down to the 5 per cent level quickly, and commented that it was obvious this had little support in either branch of Congress. The latest unemployment figure was 8.9 per cent.

The Senate originally passed the resolution calling for a $365 billion spending program with a $67.2 billion deficit. The House voted for $368.2 billion and a $70 billion deficit.

Thus, as Muskie pointed out, the Senate conferees made the bigger concessions in working out the compromise.

The compromise resolution provides for a $3.3 billion cut in defense spending and a $1.5 billion reduction in foreign aid as compared with Ford's budget, but for increases in domestic spending.

The senators sought to place more emphasis on funds to rehabilitate the nation's railroads, and the House delegation wanted higher priority on public works projects.

These questions were left to be settled as Congress acts on the various authorization and money bills through the remainder of this year.

Guam reaches capacity with 40,000 refugees

AGANA, Guam (AP) — The Vietnamese population of Guam passed a near-limit 40,000 people today, with fewer evacuees able to leave than were arriving. The logjam backed up exile traffic across the Pacific.

At the Subic Naval Base in the Philippines, authorities today temporarily halted the departure of the last 3,000 refugees to Guam and Wake because of the logjam. Some camps in the United States were reported about full.

Officials on Guam expressed concern about the island's capacity to handle any more evacuees, with severe sanitation problems already reported among the 28,000 refugees camped at sprawling "Tent City."

Admiral George S. Morrison, commander of the Pacific Fleet in the Marianas Islands, said the bottleneck was at processing centers in camps on the United States mainland.

"We've been told to hold" on Guam, he said. "We're going to have to hold them here as comfortably as we can...for a reasonable period of time."

With 20,000 evacuees expected Monday or Tuesday, "that will certainly bring us up to our 50,000 capacity mark. That will just about fill us up," Morrison said.

Meanwhile, there were these refugee developments:

—At Eglin Air Force Base, Fla., the planned arrival of at least three planeloads of Vietnamese today was expected to help bring the camp's refugee population to about 2,000 by the end of the weekend. A tent city constructed on an isolated air field at the base can hold 2,500.

—The refugee population at Camp Pendleton, Calif. — 18,762 — made the 104-square-mile Marine base the biggest community on the Southern California coast between metropolitan Los Angeles and the San Diego area. Including military personnel, 56,000 men, women and children filled every barracks, quonset hut, tent and house.

—In Manila, the Navy today announced a temporary halt in the movement of Vietnamese refugees from Subic Naval Base to Guam and Wake, with 3,000 refugees still left in Subic's Grande Island tent city.

—In Washington, D.C., meanwhile, the Immigration and Naturalization Service told two U.S. airlines, World Airways and Flying Tiger, that they face stiff fines for transporting Indochinese refugees who lacked proper immigration papers a few days before the Ford administration declared a blanket parole for those leaving Indochina. The INS said the fines could reach $1,000 for each such alien, but the number of aliens was not released. The Immigration Service said the penalties did not cover the airlift of 338 orphans by World Airways. World Airways had no immediate comment. A Flying Tiger spokesman said his firm would "vigorously contest" any penalty.

—Administrators and faculty members of Southeastern Oklahoma State University in Durant, Okla., recommended that the American Association of State Colleges and Universities set up a program in which 100 to 200 refugees would go to each of the association's more than 2,000 campuses. The refugees would get a 16-week course in English, vocational training and economic fundamentals.

On Guam, figures released today showed a total 84,295 refugees arriving on the island since "Operation New Life" began and 40,611 departing for the United States mainland.

When more than 7,500 refugees arrived by ship Friday, camps on the island were so full that more than 1,000 were immediately loaded onto planes and diverted to Wake Island.

Morrison said Camp Pendleton and Fort Chaffee, Ark., have been unable to process the thousands of Vietnamese as fast as they are being shipped in from Guam. He said some refugees might remain on Guam for months.

"We assume more will come here," he said. "There are people floating around at various points and we cannot estimate how many there will be."

U.S. officials concerned over
Reds in Laos

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. officials are privately concerned that the Pathet Lao, encouraged by Communist successes in South Vietnam and Cambodia, is attempting to take control of the government in Laos.

But, they also have the impression that Prince Souvanna Phouma intends to remain as prime minister and preserve the coalition government whose formation a year ago brought a formal end to nearly 20 years of warfare.

These officials, asking not to be identified, said they expect a new wave of strikes in Vientiane and outbursts of fighting, particularly along Route 13, as the Pathet Lao steps up its sporadic campaign. However, there is still no confirmation at the State Department that five pro-Western Cabinet ministers have resigned, which would virtually eliminate the right-wing faction.

Government forces are known to have walked away from several military thrusts by the Communists in order to avert an escalation of the fighting.

Recent student demonstrations, meanwhile, are said by a State Department spokesman to have been "politically motivated" partly by "foreign elements." None of the estimated 1,000 Americans in the country was injured in the latest wave.

With the Pathet Lao in control of four-fifths of the country, the State Department has had little choice but to work with the coalition government which took over in April 1974.

Officials here say they see no danger of the coalition flying apart in the foreseeable future but are concerned about its long-term survival. Still, it is given far greater chance of success than the country's 1957 and 1962 coalitions.

In Vientiane, the U.S. Embassy today called on Americans in Laos to remain calm.

"We do not believe there is any real danger to you or your property," an embassy circular said. "We should be most circumspect in comforting ourselves, avoiding any situation that could provoke trouble."

A spokesman said no evacuation was under way or was planned. But he said that an emergency handbook of evacuation instructions entitled "Bend with the Wind" had been circulated.

The U.S. charge d'affaires, Christian A. Chapman, was reported to have called on the prime minister and foreign minister to protest the demonstration at the embassy and the lack of police protection.

Sources said Chapman had been assured by both men that "appropriate and effective protection would be provided" and that there was no change in the government's desire for "good relations with the U.S. and a continuation of U.S. assistance."

Children blamed

Children playing with matches was the cause of a fire Friday in a pile of wood at a home in Grand Detour.

The Dixon Rural Fire Department and its Grand Detour station were called to extinguish the blaze at the corner of E. Ogles Street and Ill. 2. Mrs. John Roe reported the fire in the wooded lot behind her home.

Non-Mother's Day
planned at church

OAK PARK, Ill. (AP) — Childless women too long have been made to feel inferior and unnatural, says a minister who will honor them Sunday in a Non-Mother's Day celebration at his church.

The Rev. Gerald Krick, for five years pastor of the Unitarian-Universalist Church in this Chicago suburb, estimates that two-thirds of his congregation of 207 are married and 20 per cent of the couples are childless.

"I've been asked to make population a sermon topic and I can think of no better time than Sunday, which is Mother's Day," said Rev. Krick, 41, who studied theology at Cambridge in England and Boston University.

"I advocate that women should not be pressured by parents, friends or society as a whole into having children when they actually don't want them," he said. "I am married and have a 7-year-old daughter. We originally were going to have two children but decided one was enough."

The Rev. Mr. Krick said there "has been no resentment at all from my congregation which is a fairly young group in the middle income bracket."

"Some women have been almost convinced that they should be ashamed of themselves for not adding to the population," he said. "But more and more women are realizing that it may be best for them to sacrifice the experience of bearing a child."

Many of them are very sensitive to our world's problems of shortages, crowding and pollution. And one of the most significant factors behind our present crisis is relentlessly increasing population."

Type of Supreme Court justices

It is reported that President Gerald Ford, not elected by the voters, promised socialist Attorney General Levi that he would give him the first appointment to the first vacancy on the Supreme Court. What a fine Republican Ford claims to be.

Anderson and Percy want all conservatives to quit condemning the Republican Party and broaden its base. They circulated a paper pledging loyalty to G.O.P.

Levi's record should have eliminated him as dog catcher in any good party, but, no, the Republicans made him attorney general and next move is to a judge on the Supreme Court. It would be laughable if it was not so serious for the welfare of America, for Levi's record to date is detrimental to the welfare of the citizens of the United States.

Moral goals stem from mother

By HENRY J. TAYLOR

Mother's Day must remind us that for every man in a thousand who will risk his life for a cause, there are a thousand mothers in a thousand who will risk their lives for their children, and have done so.

The mother rests, weak and white, on the bed. Her forehead and all her body are wet with agony. But she no longer thinks of that. She has heard her baby's first cry. And whether it be her first baby or her fifth, the feeling is the same.

That hand which supports the head of the newborn baby supports the civilization of our great country.

Great battles are fought and won and lost. Nations rise and fall. Great cities flourish today; tomorrow the sands lie heavy over them.

But of all these events, the eternal Niagara of new babies is the first essential foundation.

A mother's moral leadership is the family's moral leadership and the moral leadership of our nation.

In my own experience and travels, I have never seen a really superior man who ever became too big for his mother, his boots or his Bible.

On a hot night, in the dusty streets of a city, look and you will see thousands of women sitting in doorways, or on fire escapes, taking care of children.

In lonesome farmhouses, spotted far out on monotonous plains, under a low sun setting on a long hard day, you find women, cheerful and dauntless, taking care of children.

In the middle of the night, in dingy huts or big houses, while men sleep, you find women awake, taking care of children.

Come out of an office building at one or two o'clock in the morning. You will see a woman standing by the elevator door. She wears a plain black dress and her shoulders may be bent and tired. Many hours, while others are sleeping, she works on her knees—scrubbing.

She sleeps just as few hours as she can and works through the heavy day taking care of her family, without pay, waiting for the time when everything must be in order at home so that she can go to work again.

Yet there she stands and usually says in all cheerfulness: "Good night."

Is not that black dress just as truly the uniform of a brave soldier? That woman has borne children. She has worried over sick beds, put children in their graves, worked for a family and for a husband. She may have put the husband in his grave, giving her pitiful savings in the effort to express loyalty through the undertaker.

How poorly most mothers' services are repaid by us men and by society as a whole.

"Ma means well," you sometimes hear it said, "but she belongs to another generation. Things are different today. She doesn't understand."

Well, generally the difference is that there is not so much an age gap as there is an experience gap. And as for the young girl who marries into the family it's wonderfully inspiring to see the right kind of young girl helping a young man.

May I digress to point out that there are some hazards in courtship. In Philadelphia, for example, a young man decided to court his girl by letter. He sent her a proposal every day for 65 days. On the 65th day the girl married the mailman.

In any case, lucky is the boy who possesses the love, interest and thought of the right kind of girl.

They guarantee abler Americans in the future. For this country's social system improves in proportion that the men in it are influenced by its good women.

The strength of Niagara is made up of each drop of water moving in the same direction. Likewise with the strength of each family comes the strength of America.

On Mother's Day let each member in each family give confidence to the whole family regarding this basic fact. And let everyone in the family give confidence in our great country.

Social Security falsely sold

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The text of an address by Dr. Milton Friedman, Paul Snowden Russell Distinguished Service Professor of Economics, University of Chicago, delivered at Rockford College, will be printed in 10 installments. Following is the seventh installment.)

Did Social Security reflect a grass roots demand for services? The answer is no. It was sold to the public under false pretenses and has since been expanded undersimilar false pretenses year after year by people who are in the business of selling government programs to the country.

Let me give a very much simpler and more recent example, which I have already referred to—the safety and antipollution provisions for automobiles. Mr. Nader ran a crusade a few years ago that cars were unsafe and that we ought to have an all-wise government agency step in and protect ourselves from ourselves, require us to fasten the seat belts, require us to have safety devices on the car, etc. Again, was there a grass roots demand for government to step in on that area? Not a bit, it was a manufactured crusade which produced laws, the results of which most people don't like. Indeed, to such an extent that this is one of the few examples you can cite in American history in which any government control has ever been eliminated. The outrage of the people about the absurd interlock system whereby you can't start your car unless you have first mastered the mechanics of the gremlins that the manufacturers built into your seat-belts, led to such a national outrage that Congress really repealed it. I don't believe people realize how extraordinary an episode that is. As a connoisseur of governmental intervention, I have tried to accumulate over the course of years the number of occasions on which a governmental intervention has been eliminated. The list is very short. It includes postal savings, it includes prohibition, that is a repeal of the Volstead Act of prohibiting alcoholic beverage-es. It includes the repeal of the provision for compulsory interlock. You will find it very hard to add very many to that list.

Let me give you another simple example. I was in Florida not long ago, just the week after Congress had passed the mass transit bill providing for billions of dollars to be spent in local communities on mass transit. There was a story in the local Florida paper about a proposal to expand bus service, which had been put up to the local voters three years in a row in the form of approval of a bond issue. Three years in a row it had been turned down. Any student of democracy would say that that was pretty clear evidence that it wasn't something which the populace desired. But what happened? The newspaper story was "Now that Washington has passed a mass transit bill we'll be able to have that bus system" because the money will come from Washington. That surely was not a case where there was a grass root demand.

Marcos sees U.S. in new 'ballgame'

By DON OAKLEY

At least one U.S. ally seems to be making the most of the current game of "Let's play reassessment."

The "sudden and shocking developments" in Southeast Asia and the "equivocal reaction" of the American Congress thereto, plus the limitations Congress has placed on presidential war-making powers have created a whole new set of realities in Asia, says Philippines President Ferdinand E. Marcos.

Despite the existence of a U.S.-Philippines mutual defense treaty which Marcos himself renegotiated in 1966, "there's no certainty that in case of external aggression the United States would come to the rescue of the Philippines," he said the other day.

He did not, however, specify what external powers harbor aggressive designs against the Philippines.

Certainly Japan has neither the inclination nor the means to embark on another imperialistic adventure. North Vietnam will be preoccupied for some time in digesting its recent victory. China is more likely to try to take Taiwan than launch an overseas invasion of the Philippines and, anyway, only the Soviet Union has a navy remotely capable of such an operation.

The fact that President Marcos can talk about the Philippines now being "in the front line" of U.S. defenses in Asia and at the same time drop hints about taking over U.S. bases on the islands and even scapping the defense treaty with this country might suggest to a cynic that he is less worried about any external threat than he is hopeful of wringing some domestically useful concessions from the United States in its present difficulties. Some observers, for instance, expect demands for new cash-rental agreements for Clark Field and Subic Bay as well as greater Filipino control over them.

In point of bald fact, the only foreseeable threat to the security of the Philippines exists within the Philippines themselves, in the form of a strong leftist-terrorist guerrilla movement that may or may not be Communist-inspired but which in any case has driven Marcos in recent years to adopt a number of the autocratic characteristics of a Nguyen Van Thieu.

If Marcos can placate political unrest in his country and solidify his position by appearing to twist the somewhat bedraggled beard of Uncle Sam, who can really blame him?

The Worry Clinic

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE
CASE D-654: When I was 16, I was elected president of the Young Peoples Society at our church in Ft. Wayne, Indiana. Before the balloting for each office, the candidates were asked to stand, so the members could see them.

And when it came Cora Arose, and flashed a smile suitable for a toothpaste ad.

My heart did what felt like a complete flip-flop, for I fell in love at first sight!

It was almost a dozen years later, however, when Cora and I got married.

In the meanwhile, we dated others and one of her boy friends, as a birthday present, gave her a subscription to an inspirational little magazine called Sunshine.

She was then an adult and secretary to the head of a manufacturing firm.

"That was the first magazine I had ever received in my own name," she recently added.

"And it inflated my ego, as well as stimulated me with its many inspiring poems and short stories."

Magazine Gifts
Since girls become the chief molders of cultural attitudes in their children after marriage, it would be a splendid idea if more teen-agers thus got appropriate magazines for Christmas, birthdays and graduation presents.

Parents, please remember that the average smoker burns up 150 one-dollar bills on the ends of his cigarettes EVERY YEAR!

That money would not only encourage the reading habits of his children if invested in the daily newspaper, as well as several uplifting magazines slanted to teen-agers.

But by addressing the magazines to your son or daughter, that not only inflates their pride, but the resulting possessive feeling makes them more likely to devour the printed contents.

On our daughter Judy's 10th birthday, I sent her a congratulatory telegram, just as a surprise and a tonic to her ego.

"Why," she exulted to her mother, "I never had a telegram sent to me before!"

So bolster your children's pride and meanwhile help insure their reading skill, by sending them one or more inspirational magazines, such as those listed below.

Sunshine (Litchfield, Ill., 62056. Monthly. $3 per year).

Guideposts (Carmel, N.Y., 10512. Monthly. $3 per year).

Quote (Anderson, S.C., 29621. Weekly. $12 per year).

Boys' Life (New Brunswick, N.J., 08903. Monthly. $5 per year).

The first three magazines above carry no advertising and are inspirational, educational and with a moral flavor. Boys' Life is the Boy Scout magazine, containing only a little advertising of wholesome products for young folks, and also character building.

Many church magazines also fit into this category of "cultural insurance" for your youngsters, so add them to the list.

And if you expect children to go to college, such good magazines will help motivate them to become facile readers.

But have the magazines sent in their name, so they will feel elated and thus more inclined to peruse each issue.

It is far better to inspire your youngsters with noble thoughts and good reading habits, NOW, than merely lay up money for their college expenses 10 years hence!

With your cigarette outlay for only a week or two, you can thus bolster the reading habits and ego of those in Junior High or above, so don't delay!

Consumer survival -- Part 4

Don't overspend on cosmetics

"Consumer Survival Kit" was adapted by John Dorfman from a weekly television series by the Maryland Center for Public Broadcasting. The 30-minute programs appear weekly on 240 public broadcasting stations and offer tactics and techniques for the dollar-conscious consumer. The following column is an excerpt from a chapter of "Consumer Survival Kit." Praeger Publishers. Dorfman is a free lance writer and a former editor at "Consumer Reports."

(Last of four columns)

By JOHN DORFMAN
There really isn't much of a difference between expensive and cheaper cosmetics. Differences between brands are usually determined by which of the standard ingredients are used, and in what proportion. One component that may vary considerably is the kind of perfume used in a cosmetic. (The fragrance, by the way, is usually the most expensive ingredient in a cosmetic.) Tests have shown that consumers link a product's fragrance with its "perceived quality."

The government does not pretest cosmetics for safety or effectiveness. The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) does act to take a product from the market if it receives too many reports of allergic reactions to that product. According to Dr. Richard Sykes, a cosmetics specialist associated with Ralph Nader, the FDA generally takes steps if it believes a product is causing reactions among one out of a thousand users. But such steps are taken only after the product has been in the market place. The government relies on the manufacturers for pretesting.

Some 60,000 people are injured by cosmetics every year, according to the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. The typical allergic reaction is a rash, ranging from a mild skin irritation to a reaction about as severe as a case of poison ivy. But there have been more serious injuries, including blindness, baldness and disfigurement. Severe allergic reactions have been reported from the use of hair dyes, vaginal sprays and nail polish, among other products.

Cosmetics ads often masterfully project an image while saying nothing specific about the product. Supposing you are disappointed in a product's results, there probably would be little you could say in a letter of protest to the company. After all, if a product's promise was to "awaken the goddess within you," what are you going to write? Perhaps: "I bought a jar of your miracle cream for $18, and as far as I can tell, the goddess within me is still asleep." You probably wouldn't get very far with that complaint. In the meantime, you've spent $18 for, say, a jar of cold cream.

If the ingredients in an $18 jar and a $2.50 jar are basically the same, what does the extra money buy? In part, it goes to pay for the prestigious aura of the $18 jar.

The ingredients are only a small fraction of the ultimate cost of a cosmetic product. What this means to you is that you can save if you make your cosmetics yourself. It's possible, and no more difficult than making, say, a hollandaise sauce.

You can make vanishing cream, hand lotion, astringents, suntan lotion and after-shave lotion at home, to name a few. Your local library probably has books telling how to make cosmetics from scratch. Until very recently, making your own cosmetics was the only way you could be sure of what was in them. The idea of labeling cosmetics with the ingredients they contain was scorned by the industry. To consumers' requests for ingredient labeling, industry spokesmen had a variety of answers. Such labels, they protested, would reveal trade secrets. They would not fit on small items such as lipsticks (some lipsticks have dozens of ingredients). They would be too cost-

Public Notice is hereby given that on April 29, A.D. 1975, a certificate was filed in the Office of the County Clerk of Lee County, Illinois, setting forth the names and post-office addresses of all of the persons owning, conducting and transacting the business known as Food World Grocers, located at 1129 N. ly to produce, since every time a slight change was made in a cosmetic's formula, a new batch of labels would be needed. And they wouldn't help consumers much anyway, the industry spokesmen concluded, since those few people who have allergic reactions usually don't know what they're allergic to.

Pressure from consumers succeeded in overriding each of these objections. In 1973 the FDA issued an order with an effective date of March 31, 1975. All cosmetics packaged after that date must be labeled with a complete list of the ingredients (in descending order of weight). If the list is too long to be printed on a normal product label, a tag must be attached to the product bearing the list. There is a procedure under which companies can petition to have some ingredients left unlisted on the grounds that they're trade secrets. But the FDA intends to be quite strict about granting such exceptions. As of late 1974, none had been granted. An FDA spokesman said that any ingredient with a known potential for causing allergic reactions would not be allowed to slip through the trade-secret loophole. According to Dr. Sykes, the Nader cosmetics specialist, the trade secret argument was silly anyway.

Miss Weber exchanges vows with Mr. Budzinski in Dixon

The First Presbyterian Church was the setting for the April 5 marriage of Miss Cheryl Weber, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Weber, Dixon, and Ronald Budzinski, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Budzinski, Peoria.

The wedding was performed by the Rev. James Armour, pastor of the church, and Jon Warfel, DeKalb, provided organ accompaniment for vocal selections by Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Trumbell, Worth.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was attired in a gown of sheer white organza worn over crinolin and taffeta, and fashioned with a Venetian lace bodice featuring a sweetheart neckline and Camelot sleeves. Matching lace encircled the hemline of the gown's floor-length skirt, which was accented by a wattleau train, and a contoured headpiece of pearl-embroidered lace held her elbow-length veil of illusion tulle. The colonial bouquet she carried combined variegated pink carnations, white Sweetheart roses, white Elegance carnations, baby's breath and ivy strands.

Miss Cindy Weber and Mrs. Penny Hinrichs, who attended their sister as maid of honor and matron of honor, wore full-length gowns of pink polyester styled with A-line skirts and spaghetti shoulder straps. Their costumes were complemented by chiffon jackets designed with butterfly sleeves and back-bows, and their head-dresses were formed of pastel-pink Elegance carnations, baby's breath and ivy. Their flowers were nosegays of pink carnations, baby's breath and ivy tied with pink ribbons.

Stanley Budzinski, Peoria, was his brother's best man; William Bishop, Chillicothe, served as groomsman, and wedding guests were ushered by James Matarelli, Peoria, and Graham Cliff, Pekin.

The ceremony was followed by a reception in the church social hall when guests were registered by Mrs. William Bishop. A tiered wedding cake was served by Mrs. Betty Hindrichs, Pekin, and presiding at the coffee service and punch bowl were Mrs. Graham Cliff, Pekin, and Miss Debbie Starnes. Gifts for the couple were displayed by Miss Paula Barber, Champaign.

Since their return from a wedding trip to Nassau, the newlyweds have been residing in Peoria, where the bride is an interior designer for Phillips-Swager Architects, and her husband is an architect.

MR. AND MRS. RONALD BUDZINSKI

Dear Ann

by Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I am such a nervous wreck I can barely hold this pen. You can see how shaky my handwriting is. I just spent one hour and 10 minutes on the phone. I didn't say 10 words. This elderly friend of mine talked the whole time. She was giving me holy h... for not coming to see her in four days. The fact that I spend at least 45 minutes on the telephone with her every day didn't mean a thing.

Does age give people the right to demand they be catered to? True, we've been friends for many years but I'm sick of her unceasing demands, terrible temper, endless prattle, malicious gossip and finally her self pity, which drives me up the wall.

This woman is not ill. She has money. She can do a great many things others her age cannot do, but she just loves to run me ragged. I feel sorry for her because I am her only friend. The others have all had it up to here and decided to let her wallow alone.

Should I drop her—or go on being a martyr and consider it my cross to bear? What would YOU do?—Blipped

Dear B.: I'm not you and you aren't me. Only YOU know the depths of your need for martyrdom.

Your friend (?) is not going to change. It's up to you to decide how much more punishment you want—or need.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a 17-year-old high school junior who must be told if I'm right or wrong.

I had an operation on my ears last year. They used to stick like little love-cup handles. A plastic surgeon did a very good job of cutting the cords back and now my ears look normal—close to my head.

Mom just loves to show people pictures of me, the way I looked before. I hate it when she does this. She says, "Everyone in town has known you since you were a little boy, so what's wrong with it?" I STILL don't like it.—New Me

Dear New: It's quite understandable that Mom's before-and-after caper would make you uncomfortable, and she should respect your wishes. I'm with you, pal.

Laura picks up the second phone whenever I talk to a friend. She says terrible things just to embarrass me. She hides my clothes and books. Once she took my best friend's rings off the wash basin. I pleaded for two hours before she gave them back.

Dad says what Laura needs is a daily thrashing. Mom thinks counseling might help. Are all 7-year-olds like this? Will Laura grow out of it? The thought that my little sister might need professional help scares me to death. What should be done?—Lynnfield Sister

Dear Sister: One of the problems is that your parents can't agree on what should be done about that child. She has learned to "divide and conquer." Moreover, Laura has discovered she is the center of attention if she misbehaves. Often young children act up because they'd rather be punished than ignored.

I suggest counseling—for Laura and your parents. They need to learn where THEY fit into the picture.

Prairieville Social Circle May luncheon

The annual May luncheon for 22 members and guests of the Prairieville Social Circle was held Wednesday in the Ramada Inn, Rock Falls.

Wesleyan Society dinner-meeting

The First United Methodist Church Wesleyan Society will meet for a scramble dinner at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday in the church dining hall. Meat will be furnished for the dinner by the evening's committee.

Attention! Prospective brides

Because of misunderstanding on wedding pictures, The Telegraph is asking prospective brides to arrange for good black-and-white wedding pictures for use with wedding stories.

Color photographs and black-and-white prints off a color negative are unsatisfactory for good newspaper reproduction.

Rather than be disappointed by having a picture rejected by the newspaper, we are advising brides to insist on a black-and-white picture shot with black-and-white film.

Phidian program by Mrs. Berg

Mrs. Charles Berg presented a program entitled "Die Fledermaus" and I for members of the Phidian Art Club when they met Tuesday afternoon in Loveland Community House.

The mother of three sons and a daughter, Mrs. Berg is married to a retired Air Force master sergeant, which provided many opportunities for travel in the states and overseas.

They lived in many places under varying and challenging circumstances including a London flat, the country estate of a famous British film photographer, a primitive cottage in the Rhineland Palzarea of Germany and houses of all sizes and shapes in America.

Mrs. Berg attended the Fredric Mizen Academy of Art, Chicago, where she studied dress design, and Cornell College, Mt. Vernon, Iowa. Her greatest ambition is to have a story published in the New Yorker Magazine and to learn to speak fluent German. Her hobbies include painting, sewing and her new grandson, Matt.

Mrs. Berg's program developed from her affection for the Viennese waltz composers, Johann Strauss and his son, Johann II, and she stated her regret that such a romantic period no longer exists.

Playing the overture from Die Fledermaus by Johann Strauss as well as brief excerpts from the rest of the opera, she took her listeners to old world Vienna at its musical best, and described the light-hearted deception practiced by the characters as the plot was finally untangled.

There was an element of wistfulness evidenced as she compared the 100 years of the popularity of the Viennese waltz, which had created an era of gracious and gentle living in Austria, with the forthrightness and lack of illusion of today. She noted that it is very significant that the entire mood of human existence changed with the death of Strauss in 1899. Vienna mourned, as did the world.

"A century ago," Mrs. Berg said, "during the sunset years of Austria's 1000-year-old empire, there was no clear demarcation between the real world and that mystical land of the waltz. The Viennese traditionally lived in two countries—one on the map, and the other was the imaginary region where wine flowed, love thrived and everything was silk-lined. It is impossible to exaggerate the degree to which the Viennese population must have been permeated with music after a hundred or more years of great musicians living in their midst—Haydn, Mozart, Beethoven, Schubert, Brahms and Johann Strauss and his son."

Johann Strauss, born in 1825, came from a likely line of descendants—his grandfather maintained a beer garden and dance hall, and his father wrote waltzes, polkas and marches. After his father's death, Johann combined his father's and his own orchestra for tours. In 1855, he composed the "Gypsy Baron," a popular operetta, and in 1888 he wrote the "Emperor's Waltz" for the coronation of Franz Josef. No other composer was so well loved by his fellow composers and the public.

While Verdi, Wagner and Brahms battled for musical supremacy and criticized each other's music, they all thought Strauss was a unique genius. Mrs. Berg expressed her profound admiration for the composer.

DEAR POLLY—During rainy weather we were always annoyed by the noise of water dripping against the metal in the downspouts on our house. Struass as well as brief excerpts from the rest of the opera, she took her listeners to old world Vienna at its musical best, and described the light-hearted deception practiced by the characters as the plot was finally untangled.

There was an element of wistfulness evidenced as she compared the 100 years of the popularity of the Viennese waltz, which had created an era of gracious and gentle living in Austria, with the forthrightness and lack of illusion of today. She noted that it is very significant that the entire mood of human existence changed with the death of Strauss in 1899. Vienna mourned, as did the world.

"A century ago," Mrs. Berg said, "during the sunset years of Austria's 1000-year-old empire, there was no clear demarcation between the real world and that mystical land of the waltz. The Viennese traditionally lived in two countries—one on the map, and the other was the imaginary region where wine flowed, love thrived and everything was silk-lined. It is impossible to exaggerate the degree to which the Viennese population must have been permeated with music after a hundred or more years of great musicians living in their midst—Haydn, Mozart, Beethoven, Schubert, Brahms and Johann Strauss and his son."

Johann Strauss, born in 1825, came from a likely line of descendants—his grandfather maintained a beer garden and dance hall, and his father wrote waltzes, polkas and marches. After his father's death, Johann combined his father's and his own orchestra for tours. In 1855, he composed the "Gypsy Baron," a popular operetta, and in 1888 he wrote the "Emperor's Waltz" for the coronation of Franz Josef. No other composer was so well loved by his fellow composers and the public.

While Verdi, Wagner and Brahms battled for musical supremacy and criticized each other's music, they all thought Strauss was a unique genius. Mrs. Berg expressed her profound admiration for the composer.

When having a party and the refrigerator is so loaded there is no room left for chilled bottled drinks use your washing machine, fill it with ice and stock up. When the ice melts simply drain.—M.M.

DEAR M.M.—I once heard a cooking instructor tell a class that the bathtub could be so used as a cooler. If the shower curtain is pulled across the tub no one would be the wiser. Large containers of food that should be chilled also could be put on top of the ice in the tub.—POLLY.

DEAR POLLY—During rainy weather we were always annoyed by the noise of water dripping against the metal in the downspouts on our house. The solution was to push a plastic cleaning puff (such as used to clean those pans that do not require greasing) into the bottom bend of the downspout near the ground. This puff allows the water to go through and absorbs the dripping sound.—GINNY.

DEAR POLLY—After ruining my umpteenth needle threader last night I decided to make my own. I cut off a strand of electric wire that is made up of multiple fine copper wires. One was peeled off and a loop of it was stapled to a small piece of cardboard (loop extends beyond top of the board) and this works fine for crewel yarn, embroidery thread, etc., or when one is using a needle with a little larger eye. If no stapler is available this loop could be glued or taped between two pieces of cardboard.—MRS. R. H. V.

By Oswald & James Jacoby
The late Sonny Moyes who edited the Bridge World magazine for many years used to do a lot of writing about a 4-3 trump fit. He discussed this so much that these 4-3 fits are frequently called Moysian fits in his honor.

Sonny sat North. His favorite partner, the late Albert Morehead, South.

They were using weak jump overcalls so Morehead elected to make a takeout double in spite of the singleton heart.

As you can see the hand will make three notrump because each defender holds four clubs. It won't make five diamonds because East holds three diamonds and only two spades. Will it make four spades?

Sonny gave Al a chance to try. His raise to three was based partly on his theory about 4-3 fits and partly because he had great faith in his partner's dummy-playing ability.

Al didn't disappoint him. He made the four-spade contract with no trouble at all.

He ruffed the third club, led a trump to dummy's queen and a second trump back to his ace. Then he started to run diamonds. He didn't really care about who held the last two trumps. Someone could ruff, but that risk for the defense.

Actually, West ruffed as soon as he could and led a fourth club. Al ruffed in dummy, came to his hand with the ace of hearts, drew the last trump and claimed.

Grand slam qualifier pleasantly surprised

CHICAGO (AP) — John Talaga was pleasantly surprised as he stood in the stands at Washington Park race track and stared at the ticket in his hand.

Talaga, 50, of Harvey wasn't a winner of the daily double. His ticket was one that qualified him to go for the top prize in the Grand Slam game of the Illinois State Lottery — $50,000 for life, with a guaranteed minimum payment of $1 million.

It was against the odds that Talaga would be in the stands. Some 23 million people held tickets but only 75 to 80 held blue ones with the number 81565 on them. They qualify for the final drawing June 14 at Arlington Park.

Only about 3,000 people were in the stands at Washington Park Friday night when the number 81565 was drawn. Talaga happened to be among them.

At first he couldn't believe his ticket was a qualifier. But Lottery Supt. Ralph Batch examined it and assured him it was.

All qualifiers will receive a minimum of $2,500 and are eligible for the grand prize, as well as prizes of $15,000 and $50,000.

Any person holding a red lottery ticket with the qualifying number on it will win $500. For those with a white ticket, the prize is $250.

One in four tots still unprotected from polio

Even with the widespread availability of polio vaccine, one out of four Illinois 2-year-olds remain unprotected against the disease, according to a recent polio survey conducted by the Illinois Department of Public Health.

And state health authorities say that, if intensive efforts are not made to improve the polio immunization level in Illinois, we face the possibility of new cases of paralytic polio in the state.

Dr. Joyce Lashof, director of the state health department, said, "Although Illinois' polio immunization level is higher than the national average of 60 per cent, there are still far too many children who have not received complete polio immunization."

Dr. Lashof explained that, during the first five years of life, children are more susceptible to polio than at any other age. "By the time a child reaches the age of two," she said, "he should have received the basic series of polio immunizations, plus one booster dose. A child who has received any less than this is susceptible to the disease."

Dr. Lashof advised all parents to check their children's immunization records to determine whether they have received the full series of polio immunizations. She strongly urged those whose children have not received any or all doses of polio vaccine to contact their physicians or local health agencies immediately.

"Polio is a tragic disease," Dr. Lashof said, "for the victim and for his family. With just a small effort on the part of parents, the disease can be prevented."

DIXON'S RANDY WAKELEY is en route to a victory in the 120-yard high hurdles event of the NCIC meet Friday night. Wakeley came back to win the lows in record time

Randy Wakeley wins pair of events, Cowley sets Dixon record in NCIC meet

By MIKE CUNIFF
TELEGRAPH Sports Writer
STERLING—Randy Wakeley was a double winner while Duane Cowley established a Dixon High School record in the mile run as the Dukes finished fourth with 25 points in the NCIC varsity track meet, here, Friday night.

Princeton won five events to top first place with 57 points, the same amount with what the Sterling Golden Warriors captured the team title in 1974. The 57 markers represents the most points Princeton has ever scored in an NCIC meet. The Tigers' previous best was 47.7 for second place behind Sterling last year.

Princeton snapped a five-year winning streak by the Golden Warriors. Sterling claimed second with 46½, followed by Rock Falls with 44½. Then came Dixon, Mendota and Ottawa tied with 22 each, Geneseo 19½, Rochelle 17½, Kewanee 10½, Hall and La Salle-Peru with 2 apiece.

A dozen of the 25 Duke markers came via winning efforts by Wakeley in the hurdles events. The junior skinned the lows in a meet record of :39.4 although the mark is .2 off his own personal best against DeKalb earlier this campaign.

Wakeley bettered the 1974 :40 effort of Reggie Anderson from Geneseo in 1974. Earlier in the evening, Wakeley took the 120-yard highs in :14.8.

Two other records were erased during the competition as Rochelle's Dave MacTaggart claimed the two-mile run in 9:26 and Ottawa's Jeff Veasy won the triple jump with a 42'10½" effort. MacTaggart's clocking bettered the 9:26.4 of Princeton's John Storm in 1971 while Veasy extended his own mark of 42'4" set last year.

Dixon's Tom Nevius was third at the end of laps 2-3-4 before sliding to fourth for laps 5-6-7. Princeton's Dave Darling came from back in the pack to claim third with sophomore Larry Schult of Rock Falls fourth. Nevius took fifth. Ed Love was fourth after the first lap and sixth at the midway point before fading to ninth.

Other Dixon placers were Bob Pinegar fourth in the discus, Chris Mullery fifth in the 100-yard dash, Greg Weigle fifth in the 440 and Cowley fifth in the mile. The junior was clocked in 4:27.4 to remove the 4:27.8 by Love earlier this season against DeKalb from the record books.

The Dukes' 440-yard relay squad of Weigle, Mike LeBlanc, Mike James and Wakeley was fourth and the mile foursome of Weigle, Eric Lohse, Doug Stouffer and Jim MacRunnels claimed fifth. Dixon's 880 team was leading the pack until a faulty exchange cost it a place.

Bill Lafferty, Dixon head varsity track coach, commented, "We didn't score in the pole vault, long jump, triple jump or shot put and we dropped the baton on the relay. We didn't have anyone in the (finals of) 220 so we just left too many things blank."

"But we're a young team. We're only losing five or six seniors so we'll have most everyone back next year. We finished about where we figured to. Sterling, Princeton and Rock Falls had to be the teams to beat."

"Individually, Randy Wakeley finished where I expected him. His high hurdle race was superb, but in the lows he could use some improvement. It could be better and probably will be now that warmer weather is here and the surfaces of the tracks are in better shape."

"Duane Cowley is only a junior and I felt he competed against an extra tough mile field. Both the mile and two-mile fields were loaded and our boys did well. It's too bad our 880 team missed a handoff because it looked like they would do 1:33, which would be their best time of the year by two or three seconds. But the missed handoff is just one of the things that happen."

"I feel all the kids tried their best and I have no complaints."

Bob Pinegar helped out with a fourth place in the discus and I was happy to see that."

Marshall cuffed badly as Dodgers are defeated

By HERSCHEL NISSENSEN
AP Sports Writer

If Mike Marshall can get out of bed today he'll be happy, but he should have stayed in bed Friday night. The Los Angeles relief ace was called on to protect a 3-2 lead against Pittsburgh in the seventh inning and quickly turned it into an 11-3 loss.

In two innings of something resembling batting practice, Marshall was battered for nine runs on seven hits—including two doubles, a triple and a homer—and three walks. It was the worst pounding in a Dodger uniform for Marshall, who set a major league record last season by relieving 106 times, never giving up more than four runs in any game.

However, he had pitched only three innings—all last Saturday—since April 19, when he injured rib cartilage on his left side. Was the two-inning shellacking worth it?

"I'll know tomorrow," Marshall said. "If I can get out of bed, then I'll call it a good night."

Elsewhere in the National League, the Cincinnati Reds nipped the New York Mets 4-3, the Chicago Cubs trimmed the San Diego Padres 5-2, the Atlanta Braves downed the Philadelphia Phillies 3-1, the St. Louis Cardinals shaded the San Francisco Giants 6-4 and the Montreal Expos edged the Houston Astros 5-4.

Marshall's chief tormentor was Pittsburgh's Dave Parker, who slammed a two-run triple to cap a four-run seventh inning that put the Pirates on top 6-3 and homered with two men on base in a five-run eighth. Parker also drove in a sixth run with a sixth-inning double off starter Bud Hooton.

"Marshall didn't have his usual velocity and he was throwing a lot of off-speed stuff," Parker said. "His arm must have been hurting or something."

But according to Dodger Manager Walter Alston, Marshall "told me he felt fine after warming up. Then when he got out there he asked to stay in so he could get the work."

Dukelets grab third place at NCIC

By JIM FOX
TELEGRAPH Sports Writer
STERLING—Convincing victories in the 440 and 880 yard relays catapulted the Dixon Dukelets to a third place finish in the 1975 frosh-soph NCIC meet, here, Friday night.

Sterling's first place total of 60 points broke a two-year winning streak held by the Dukelets in the conference meet. Rochelle placed second with 40 points. Dixon rolled up 36 for third, three markers ahead of Geneseo. Ottawa had 25 for fourth followed by Princeton 23, Rock Falls and Streator with 13, Kewanee 12, Mendota 8 and LaSalle-Peru 6.

The quartet of Brian Cox, Gary Magnafici, John Snow and Pete Poulos captured first place honors with a time of 47.0 in the 440 yard relay. The four speedsters controlled the event from the start, and finished well ahead of runner-up LaSalle-Peru.

Magnafici, Snow, Poulos and Jeff Fane went on to gain a victory in the 880 yard relay later. The race was tight until the last 60 yards as Poulos pulled past a Rochelle contender to post a timed victory of 1:38.7.

In the opening event of the meet, Jim Mazrimas placed fifth in the triple jump with a mark of 37 feet. Paul Smith missed the finals by one and three quarters inches in the afternoon preliminaries. Kewanee captured the event with a 38'3" mark.

Magnafici fell short of first in the long jump as he leaped 19'6" four inches from Sterling's winning mark. Dean Harding hurled the discus 123'7" to place fifth in the event as Sterling also took first place awards.

Dan Frost pole vaulted 11 feet as the sophomores collected three team points in a third place finish behind Ottawa and Princeton. The winning mark was set at 11'6".

One-tenth of a second was all that stopped Poulos from gaining a victory in the 100-yard dash as he failed to overtake John Hardgrove of Streator. Poulos was timed at 10.6 while Hardgrove's winning time was recorded at 10.5.

Mike Swinton placed third in the 880-yard run as the freshman accelerated from a fifth position after one lap and overtook two runners to finish with a time of 2:14 behind Geneseo and Sterling. Cox 53.9 earned him a second slot in the 440 yard run.

Dixon captured third in the mile relay with a foursome of Cox, Rick Jordan, Swinton, and Ken Hicks. Jim Magnafici placed fifth in the mile run to wrap up the Dukelets scoring.

The frosh-soph team did not place in the field events of shot put, high jump, or in the running events of the 330-yard low hurdles, 120-yard high hurdles, 220-yard dash and the two-mile run.

Two underclassmen, NCIC records were broken at Friday's meet. A three-year high jump mark was upped by one inch as Rock Falls' Brumbley leaped 6'0" to better Al Hinrichsen's 5'11" set in 1971. Tim Hayden of Sterling ran the 330 yard low hurdles in a record time of 40.9 breaking the 1974 time of 41.1 set by Dukelet Randy Wakeley.

Kaat registers 12th consecutive victory

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

Chicago's Jim Kaat keeps rolling along...with a little help from his friends.

Kaat set a White Sox team record with his 12th consecutive victory, five of them this season, beating Cleveland 2-0 Friday night. He blanked the Indians on six hits before giving way to his friends, relief pitchers Rich Gossage and Terry Forster, in the ninth.

"If it wasn't for Gossage and Forster, I'd be 0-5 this year," said Kaat, a 36-year-old left-hander who seems to age like vintage wine. "They've bailed me out of every game I've pitched. I'd like to have gone the distance, but the victory is good enough."

Elsewhere in the American League, the Milwaukee Brewers beat the Kansas City Royals 7-1, the Minnesota Twins topped the Baltimore Orioles 5-2, the Texas Rangers defeated the Detroit Tigers 3-1, the Boston Red Sox beat the California Angels 4-1 and the Oakland A's edged the New York Yankees 4-3.

Kaat beat Gaylor Perry, who made one bad pitch and wound up a loser. That pitch was to Pat Kelly in the eighth inning, and the White Sox outfielder turned it into a two-run homer.

"It was a slider inside," said Perry. "I'd like to have that pitch back, but at the time it seemed like the right thing to throw. Evidently, it wasn't."

Perry held the White Sox hitless over the first five innings and had a one-hitter until the eighth, when Tony Muser led off with an infield single. Two outs later, Kelly blasted his first home run of the season. Perry finished with a four-hit-ter.

"We needed three pitchers to beat one tonight," said Chicago Manager Chuck Tanner in tribute to Perry. "We beat a great, tough pitcher."

Kaat left the game in the ninth after giving up a leadoff double to Rico Carty. His last loss was on Sept. 4 of last season. His 12 consecutive victories broke the previous White Sox record of 11 set by John D. Rigney in 1939 and tied by Gary Peters in 1963.

Brewers 7, Royals 1
Hank Aaron's 736th career home run snapped a 1-1 tie for Milwaukee and highlighted a five-run seventh inning. It was his third homer of the season and was greeted by a standing ovation from the Kansas City fans.

"It makes me feel very good to go into a city for the first time and have the fans give me a standing ovation for a home run that has beaten their team," Aaron said. "The young fans, particularly, they want to see you hit one, even if it means their team is getting beat."

"I guess they want to be part of...part of history. It's a wholesome situation."

Bobby Mitchell had a two-run double and Don Money a two-run triple in the big inning.

Twins 5, Orioles 2
Minnesota posted its fifth victory in six starts behind rookie Jim Hughes, who pitched a seven-inning shutout for his second major league triumph.

"He was on the threshold for a couple of years, and I guess it was a little discouraging to be sent back down," said Twins Manager Frank Quilici.

While in the minors Hughes developed a changeup and a palm ball, but Quilici observed, "Maybe in addition to his arm he got ready between the ears."

He had a lot of confidence, as evidenced by the way he hung on in the first three innings."

Six of the first nine Baltimore batters reached base against Hughes, but he survived thanks to some shoddy baserunning. Al Bumbry was caught stealing and Paul Blair was strapping off base after the infield fly rule had been called on a pop fly.

Rangers 3, Tigers 1
Texas got the go-ahead run in the third inning on a throwing error by rookie outfielder Dan Meyer and added an insurance in the ninth on Tom Walker's wild pitch with the bases loaded. The beneficiary of this generosity was Texas' Jackie Brown, who pitched a six-hit-ter.

Red Sox 4, Angels 0
Rick Wise stopped California on three hits, losing his shutout in the ninth on a leadoff homer by Mickey Rivers. Rick Burleson paced the Red Sox attack with two doubles and a single.

A's 4, Yankees 3
Oakland got the winning run in the eighth when Billy Williams walked with two out, pinch-runner Matt Alexander stole second, moved to third on Thurman Munson's throwing error and scored on Sparky Lyle's wild pitch. It was the Yanks' sixth straight loss.

Second baseman Joe Morgan,

Weed-Paisley duo top seeded

SPRINGFIELD—Jim Weed and Randy Paisley, doubles team from Sauk Valley College, drew number-one seed at the state junior college Tennis Tourney, here.

Weed and Paisley won both of their opening rounds, defeating number-two-seeded Belleville, 6-0 and 6-2. In the second round the pair defeated Illinois Valley College, 7-5, 6-7 and 6-1. Semifinal and final rounds will be played today.

The University of Virginia basketball squad includes five players from Pennsylvania and four from New York state.

Today in History

By The Associated Press
Today is Saturday, May 10, the 30th day of 1975. There are 235 days left in the year.

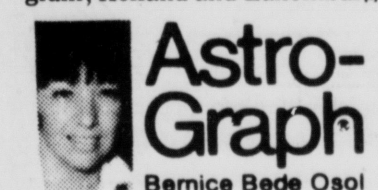

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1775 — 200 years ago — Ethan Allen and a company of Vermont militia men — the Green Mountain Boys — captured Ft. Ticonderoga, N.Y., from the British.

On this date: In 1497, the Italian navigator, Amerigo Vespucci, sailed on his first voyage to the New World. In 1865, during the Civil War, Union forces captured Confederate President Jefferson Davis at Irwinville, Ga.

In 1869, a golden spike was driven at Ogden, Utah, marking the completion of the first transcontinental railroad.

In 1871, the Treaty of Frankfurt ended the Franco-Prussian War. Alsace-Lorraine was ceded to Germany.

In 1940, during World War II, German forces invaded Belgium, Holland and Luxembourg.

For Sunday, May 11, 1975
ARIES (March 21-April 19)
This is a time to try to consolidate your resources. Don't be vague about plans. Know exactly how to spend each penny.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
You'll be aware innately of what's best for your self-interests today, yet you'll do something of small benefit to yourself.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
You must have the courage of your convictions if you expect others to go along with your aims today. Hesitate, and so will they.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
Don't undertake projects now that you feel are beyond your scope. Be honest about your talents and abilities.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
What you want to accomplish today you can do. Try not to rely upon others who lack a grasp of the situation.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
You must stand by your own decisions today to get the results you hoped for. Don't worry. Mistakes can be corrected.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23)
You'd be wise to keep something confidential to yourself today where you're involved in with another.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)
Be sure you fully understand all the terms in any agreement you enter into today. Carelessness will prove expensive.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21)
Don't let your productive intentions slip by the board. You're a trifle lazy today. It will take some self-prodding.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
Others recognize and appreciate your leadership qualities today. If something comes to a standstill, take over.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19)
Attend first to duties important to the entire household. Play later, after they're attended to.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20)
Don't waste a lot of time today trying to get others to do things you alone are interested in. Go it alone if necessary.

Your Birthday
May 11, 1975

You will form a valuable association this year with a new, enterprising friend. Collectively, you will attempt bolder aims than you would individually.

The Doctor Says:

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.
DEAR DR. LAMB — I want to ask you if it would do a person any harm to drink Sanka coffee. My husband says it's not good for me. I try to tell him that there is a difference in the regular coffee he drinks and Sanka, but he just doesn't see it that way. He says coffee is coffee.

I've told him Sanka doesn't have caffeine in it like the regular coffee does, and my doctor took me off regular coffee and told me I could drink Sanka. I guess that has been 10 or 12 years ago, and I can't say that it has hurt me. I only drink two or three cups a day.

I'm sick a lot, but my doctor tells me that it is my nerves. I choke and don't keep my food down. I do know that if I get worried about something or get fussed at I choke worse. Please let me know something about this coffee business.

DEAR READER — All of the decaffeinated products such as Sanka are essentially free of caffeine. The caffeine in regular coffee is a drug and it activates the nervous system. In many ways it is the opposite of a tranquilizer. Many people who insist on drinking lots of regular coffee have the jitters and manifestations of an overactive nervous system. The caffeine also stimulates heart action, causing extra beats in some people and may increase the production of acid digestive juice from the stomach.

Most people who switch to a decaffeinated product tolerate these very well with no problems. There are a few exceptions and some people with digestive or colon difficulty will have trouble with even the decaffeinated brands. The flavor oils in the coffee are mildly irritating to the digestive system and may be the cause in these instances.

Teas, colas, and chocolate or cocoa also contain caffeine. Switching from coffee to tea will not eliminate the caffeine intake and tea also can cause nervousness.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My wife contends that taking vitamins is superfluous as my diet contains all the essential vitamins and minerals and taking them could be dangerous.

Despite her objections I take a high potency vitamin mineral tablet containing all daily requirements of such. Regardless of how all encompassing a diet can be, there is the risk that some vitamins and minerals can be missed and that as a pharmacist I contend that while they may not do any good, they will certainly do no harm. It is not dangerous except in being a bit out of pocket cash. I'm most interested in your opinion.

DEAR READER — As long as you avoid any of the vitamin preparations that contain excessive quantities of vitamin A and D you shouldn't have any adverse effects from the usual daily vitamin-type preparations. When any of the water soluble vitamins are taken in excess the excess is simply eliminated from the body.

I'm not opposed to people taking a daily vitamin preparation as long as they don't go overboard. In view of the diet fads, medical problems and, in some instances, inadequate information about nutrition, they probably do a lot more good than harm.
